INPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. 1
ATHLETIC BALL GROUNDS, PHIADELPHIA, April 18.—The Association championship season was opened here this afternoon. It had rained in the morning, and up to 3 o'clock in the afternoon the sky still looked threatening. This had the effect of keeping the attendance down to 2,000. Previous to the game and between the innings Beck's Band discoursed some lively music to the whistling accompaniment of the occupants of the bleaching-boards. Just before Umpire Bob Ferguson called play the sun emerged from its retirement for the first time in three days, an agreeable change, which was duly appreciated by the spectators. The batting order presented by the contending Welch opened with a weak hit to Hughes and died at first. Stovey followed with a fly to right, which Burns took off the fence.

Lyons then brought the spectators to their feet by rapping out a double to left, which only missed being a home run by a foot. He went to third on a passed balls.

Lyons tried to score on a semi-passed ball and was caught between the bases and finally retired by Clark. No runs. Pinkney led off for Brooklyn with a foul fly to Lyons. Collins sent a liner past short which was too "all fired "for Fennelly to handle; but he was doubled up a moment later with Foutz, on the latter's drive to Fennelly. No runs.

Second Inning. -Purcell was sent to first on balls, but before he got there the crowd paid its respects to Ferguson.

Fennelly flied to Smith. Purcell started for second just as he thought Hughes was about to pitch and was caught between the bases and finally run out. The Athletics claimed a balk, but Ferguson did not see it that way and a wrangle ensued. Some of the well-dressed hoodlums in the boxes took a hand in the argument, and one blackguard intimated that a horse thief was a gentleman compared with Ferguson.

When quiet was restored Bauer flied to Cork-Burns fouled out to Cross. Corkhill lined the ball over Stovey's head and took second. O'Brien Cross filed to Pinkney. Weyling reached first on balls. Welch hit safely into right. Burns gathered in the ball and threw to third to head off Weyhing, but both Pinkney and Smith permitted it to pass them and Weyhing secred while Welch took third.

Stovey dropped a single to left and We'ch Lyons flied to O'Brien and Stovey was thrown out in attempting to steal second. Two runs.

Hughes was sent to first on balls, but was forced at second on Pinkney's drive to Bierbauer. Collins hit to Fennelly, who retired Pinkney at second, and Bierhauer got the ball to first ahead of Collins. No runs.

Fourth Inning-Larkins was again sent to first on balls, and went down to second on Smith's fumble of Purcell's grounder. Both runners advanced a bag on Fennelly's long ify to Corkhill. Larkins was then caught napping off third. Clark to Pinkney.

Bierbauer sent a beauty to centre on which Purcell essayed to score from second, but he was nailed at the plate by Corkhill's splendid throw to Clark. No runs.

THE POLO GROUNDS BILL

IT GETS A SETBACK WHICH RENDERS ITS

PROSPECTS RATHER DUBIOUS.

ALBANT, April 18.—Just before the close of the Assembly session the bill allowing the Giants to use the Polo Grounds was reported favorably from the Cities Committee, and permission was asked to have it read immediately. Mesers. Martin and Mullaney made a stubborn fight against it, and defeated the request by calling for the enforcement of a rule which procalling for the enforcement of a rule which provides that no bill introduced after March 15 shall be read until all the bills introduced before that time shall have been considered.

The rule had to be enforced, and thus the bill was thrown back.

This action renders the prospects for the bill somewhat dubious.

It may be that it will not have another chance of being passed during this session.

readers of The Evening World, Miss Hall, employed in Simpson's dry-goods store on Sixth avenue, collected $13.50 from the employees of the store for Mrs. Duval, and Mrs. F. H. J., of 412 Clermont avenue, Brooklyn, sent $1.

Charles Duval, the father, is still at work and the family will soon be out of need. The poor mother says she is certain that little Louisa has been taken up by Mr. Gerry, and in her pitiful ignorance of the laws, imagines that if she had money she would obtain the little girl. She cannot be driven into the belief that the little girl was drowned, and is still hoping against hope.

THEY DENY THERE'S A SCHEME.

Mr. Ackerman Explains It All Away by Figures.

A morning newspaper pretended to-day to expose a Tammany Hall scheme to evade the civilservice rules in the examination of James O'Sullivan for the position of storekeeper in the City

Record office without competition.

It amounced that ex-Congressman Cockran, ex-Register Reilly, in whose district OS ullivan resides; Supervisor Melaughlia and Chief Examiner Gunther K. Ackerman were in the scheme.

The latter said to-day that there was no scheme of the sort mentioned and, so far from being an advantage, the fact that less than three were being examined militated against Mr. O'Sullivan's chances.

Under such circumstances the rules require standing of 85 per cent, while where more than three are examined only 70 per cent, is required.

This is nearly the last of Boston's Spring games before the beginning of the League sea-son, and thus far the Club has not made an exceptionally brilliant record. If their batting has at times been hard their fielding has been for the most part far below what it should be. The cause of this errorful field work is attributed to the loose discipline maintained on the field. Errors when made have been laughed at and no coaching has been done at all. This state of things, it is said, has not only aused considerable anxiety to Manager Bart, but to several of the players, who, more than some others on the team, realize what is expected of them and endeavor honestly to earn their salaries. This is the record, in general terms, which the Boston ball-tossers bring with them this

What may be done to brighten the showing when the season opens and something more than practice depends upon games is a matter of conjecture.

Thirteen of the Hubbites took part in preli-minary practice to-day, and each of the thirteen boasts a lame arm. The Jersey Citys were out in force.

Their pony battery, Daly and Hofford, were in the points. Sowders pitched for the visitors, with Hurley, the Californian, who has just been conditionally signed by the Club. For three years Hurley has been the leading catcher in the California League, and he should do well for the Bostons. At 3.45 the game began, with Boston in the Umpire-Mr. Clinton. First Inning-Knowles hit up a high foul hich Sowders caught. Hiland flied out to Dicky Johnston, and a rounder to Sowders from O'Brien's bat settled his fate. No runs. Richardson took first on balls and second or Johnston's sacrifice. Then the only Kelly came to bat, haughtily re-eiving the applause of the 400 and the shricks He cracked a pretty single to right, which brought Richardson home.

On the throw-in Kelly took second and Brouthers's out at first allowed him to take onnession of third. Nash got to first on balls and started for econd. He failed to reach his destination, but while he was being run down the great Michael scored Boston's second run. Two runs. Second Inning-Friel opened the inning with pretty drive to right for a base. Gerhardt got first on balls, Friel taking second. The latter was forced out at third by Lyons's Hofford's long fly was captured by Johnston and Kelly looked after one of a like kind from Daly's bat. No runs.

Ray was hit by a pitched ball and took first. Gerhardt made a beautiful single-handed catch of a fly knocked by Quinn, but followed it with such a poor throw to first to catch Nash that the latter was enabled to reach second. A wild pitch sent him to third.

Hurley flied to Gerhardt. Sowders placed baser in right centre and Ray scored. Then Berhardt gobbled Richardson's fly, making his third put-out of the inning. One run.

Third Inning-Lang hit a single to right. Johnston grabbed a fly sent him by Knowles. Hiland hit a single to left, advancing Lang to cond, and both runners moved up a peg each n O'Brien's out at first. Then Friel made glad the hearts of the Jersey tes by biffing a two-baser over Quinn's head and bringing both runners home. Gerhardt added to the excitement by hitting afely to centre, but Johnston's exceedingly good return of the ball permitted Hurley to touch out Friel ten feet away from the plate.

Richardson's fly was nipped by Knowler, Kelly was given first on balls, and stood there while Johnston flied out to centre. Nash knocked a liner to right which ordinarily ould have been safe, but before the runner could reach first Hiland had got the ball there, and the visitors were sent to the field. No runs Fourth Inning-Lyons failed to reach first. Hofford got first on balls. Daly and Lang both flied out to Kelly. No runs. Ray hit a single to centre while King Kelly was carrying water to a thirsty crank in the grand stand.

Quinn's out gave Ray second. Hurley's fly fell to Gerhardt and Sowders's bat failed to connect with the ball. No runs.

Fifth Inning—Nash and Johnston captured lies of Knowles and Hiland, and the diskey bird in centre grabbed a flyer which O'Brien sent him. No runs.

Hardie Richardson's fly was squeezed by Kelly then, according to Umpire Clinton, was caught napping at second.

Kel made a slightly vociferous kick, remaining the while seated on second; but finally he walked slowly to right, repeating, "Just about four yards, old man. Just about four yards." Sixth Inning-Friel and Gerhardt made hits but there were no runs for Jersey.

Nash hit safely to centre, reached second on a a wild pitch and third on a passed ball. Ray was given first on balls, but was caught stealing

Quinn fouled to Knowles and Hurley flied to Hofford. No runs.

Seventh Inning—Bases were filled with Jerseynen, Knowles and Hiland hitting safely, but Boston made a pretty double and-no runs. Sowders and Kelly got bases on balls and scored on two basers by Johnston and Brouthers. Nash also made a safe hit. Two Eighth Inning-Three errors for Boston, but to runs for Jersey. Two of the visitors flied out and the third truck out. No runs.

THE MYSTERY OF THE SEA.

Possibilities and Probabilities as to the Fate of the Danmark's Precious Freight.

OCEAN MAP SHOWING WHERE THE DESERTED DANMARE WAS SIGHTED BY THE CITY OF CHESTER.

steamer Danmark with her 721 passengers and erew bids fair to be known to history as the mystery of the sea. Incoming transatlantic vessels bring no reports of her, and singularly enough not a spar, not a boat nor any other thing belonging to the abandoned steamer has been seen, though when last seen the ship was directly in the path of the coursers of the sea. MOBE VESSELS WITHOUT TIDINGS. The State of Georgia, of the State line, and the Alsatia, of the Anchor line, arrived to-day, but brought no tidings of the Danmark, and the Queen, of the National line, which put into Liverpool this morning, had neither seen nor heard of the lost vessel. It is now thought that perhaps the Helvetia. of the National line, which was due here Mon-day, has been the rescuer of the unfortunate Danmark, and that she has put into the Azores or Bermuda with a suddenly trebled cargo of passengers, the prevailing westerly and northwesterly winds seeming to point to this course. The Helvetia left Liverpool on April 2, with 207 passengers, 145 of whom were steerage passengers. The Danmark left her last port, Christian sand, on March 26, with 721 people, nearly all of whom were emigrants from the Norseland to the Land of Liberty. She passed across the North German Ocean and around John O'Groat's House, the northern point of Scot-land, into the Atlantic. Her course was almost due east towards the Newfoundland Banks.

JUST WHERE THE DANMARK WAS FOUND. On April 8 the steamer City of Chester sighted her in mid-ocean, in latitude 46 N., longitude 37 W., drifting in the trough of the sea.

There was not a soul on board and there was a chain cable daugling from her bow.

The captain of the City of Chester therefore concluded that the Danmark, disabled and ready to sink, had been towed by some steamer.

No salling vessel could or would have attempted to tow her.

tempted to tow her.

HAD DRIFTED GOO MILES WEEK SIGHTED.

When seen she had drifted or been towed nearly 600 miles out of her course and to the southeast. The wind was right to have drifted her in this direction, and it was in a beeline from where she ought to have been on April 7 towards the Azorea Islands.

The water filling into the Danmark had probably warned the rescuing steamer that she would soon sink, and then the passengers were removed and the ill-fated ship shandoned at a point not far from where she was seen drift.

Then the most natural thing would be for the rescuing steamer to make all speed to the near-

The disappearance of the Thingvalla line est port, which was Fayall, on one of the Azores teamer Danmark with her 721 passengers and Islands.

ARE THE RESCUED AT THE ABORES?

The prevailing winds opposed any attempt to reach Newfoundland with such a load, though it was but 100 miles further away. The sail to the Azores would take about three days with the wind square behind, those islands being about six hundred miles distant from the point where the abandoned Danmark was sighted on Apri. S.

There is no communication between the Azores and the rest of the world except by a mail steamer which sails twice a month to Lisbon, Portugal. The next mail steamer to sail from Fayal, the chief port of the Azores, left that port on the 15th, and it is a five days' trip to Lisbon.

Hence, if the people on the Danmark were taken off and landed safe at Fayal, no news of that fact would reach New York before faturday or Sunday next.

Then, too, there are nine islands in the Azores group, and should the people from the Danmark be landed on one of the others, it might be some days before Fayal was informed of the saingrants and Funch. Fato Azores and the friends ARE THE RESOURD AT THE APORES ?

These are the points upon which the friends of the emigrants and Funch, Edye & Co., agents of the steamer, base their hopes of the ultimate safety of the Daumark's passengers.

HOPES DASHED BY THE ALSATIA'S ABRIVAL.

The Anchor line steamer Aleatia, which arrived in port this morning comes from Gibraltar, and her course took her within 100 miles north of the Azores Islands. But she saw nothing of the Danmark or her rescuer. WAS THERE A COLLISION.

It is thought that the Danmark was the victim of a collision with some other steamer and that the vessel with which she collided towed her towards the Azores till she began to sink and then took her passengers off.

This vessel might have been the Helvetia. She was victualled and watered, as are all steamers, for three weeks for her own people. The advent of 721 other people would of course reduce the supply greatly, and this is another reason given for the belief that the rescuing vessel took advantage of the favorable winds and headed for Fayal.

The Danmark not overloaded.

The proposition that the Danmark was overloaded with 721 persons on board is ridiculed by Funch, Edye & Co. The Danmark for many years, and until the White Star's now boats were built, carried the heaviest cargoes of freight of any transatiantic steamer and has a 4,400 tons capacity. She could accommodate 1,500 passengers, the agents say.

Meantime there are boarding parties down the bay and at Quarantine, and each incoming ship is boarded and her officers eagerly questioned for news of the lost ship. But neither hull nor spar, nor life-boat, nor other floating thing has been seen since April 8.

Seafaring men strongly condemn the captain of the City of Chester for not ascertaining to a certainty the condition of the Danmark when he sighted her adrift. THE DANMARK NOT OVERLOADED.

He Wants That $3,100 from Law- Terrible and Fatal Fall of a Workyer Johnny Brodsky.

Brodsky was the custodian of the fund.
The goods were never delivered.
Little Judge John Henry McCarthy, the Hon. Tim's Tammany rival, got the votes Tim thought he had said for, and Campbell was left to pull himself out of the soup.
There are thirty-one election districts in the Eighth Assembly District, and Campbell put up $100 to be used in each of these to forward his interests in the securing of votes.

He allegas that, while the money was accepted by Brodsky, nothing was done for him—no workers hired, and no tickets, save McCarthy's, bunched with the Republican tickets in the O'Brien boxes.

Tim has tried to get back his money without suit, but being unsuccessful, he applied to his friend, Civil Justice Goidfogis, to assist him.

The latter turned the case over to Wm. J. Lipman, of 261 Broadway, who yesterday served the complaint, which alleges the non-performance of a contract and demands the payment of $3,100 damages, with interest and costs.

Lawyer Brodsky, the defendant in the case this morning, acknowledged to The Evening World reporter that Campbell had sued him, but thought that he had better not talk about the case until he had seemed counsel. He said that he did not propose to have a fool for a client and conduct the defense himself.

All he would say concerning the merits of the case was that "it is an action for the failure to perform an alleged contract."

"If Tim Campbell wants night he'll get pleuty of it before he is through with this." he added.

Suddenly he slipped, fell from his perilous position and plunged head first down into the seething torrent below.

The other workmen, horror-stricken, heard the man's shrick as he fell and saw his body go hurling downward towards a fate from which nothing could save him.

Reaching the water, the body sunk from sight for a moment.

When next seen it was being borne by the current towards the whiripool.

Into that frightful oddy it passed before any effort could be made to get it to the shore.

It was undoubtedly the case that the man was instantly killed by the shock of the terrible fall and that it was only his lifeless body which then floated away.

A SON'S QUADRUPLE CRIME. MURDER, ASSAULT, ARSON AND SUICIDE BY

THE SAME HAND. INPECTAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. I WESTFIELD, Mass., April 18.—This morning, at West Farms, a hamlet about five miles from this town, Joseph King, aged seventy-eight, a whip manufacturer for half a century, well-to-do and highly respected, was shot while sleeping in his bed by his dissipated son of forty-four in his bed by his dissipated son of forty-four years.

After shooting his father he attempted to kill his aged maiden anut. Miss Cynthis Tuttle.

He then burned down the house, and three hours later, within a dozen rods of the burned buildings and within hearing of the neighbors who were about to institute a search for the myreter, put a builet through his own brain. Where stood last night a peaceful dwelling, nothing but a few charred embers remain and a few rods distant, in a small described house, lie the dead bodies of father and son. The father has pistol-wounds in chest, nock and eye, either of which would have been mail. The son has a bail through his temple.

It is deemed probable that the younger Ring killed his father because the latter refused to furnish him with more money to squander, his son having been on a prolonged debauch.
